NOTICES OF MOTION.

Hon Havelock brought in a petition from the citizens of Lytton, praying that a public government schools may be established in that city.

RECIPROCITY. The Council then went into Committee of the Whole to consider the question of Reciprocity with the United States.

Hon Helmcken would rather that any other member than himself had brought forward the Resol: Ans. In His Excellency's speech the passage occurs to the effect that several gentlemen in England had endeavoured to have British Columbia added to the Reciprocity Treaty now being negotiated between Canada and the United States with the consent of the Imperial Government, and on this the Execuand the United States with the consent of the Imperial Government, and on this the Executive ages the opinion of the Council. He did not think the Council could give any opinion without knowing what the treaty was or upon what, basis it was being framed. What was the meaning of Reciprocity? Reciprocity meant the exchange of an article, the produce of force county for an article, the produce of of one country for an article the produce of of one country for an article the produce of another country free of duty. A treaty between two countries need not necessarily be a treaty admitting similar articles, the articles might be of different kinds. Another difficulty was to decide on what basis such a treaty would be framed so as not to create too great the stack in the stock if for a deficiency in the revenue; but he took it fo granted that reciprocity could be made adprove that such a treaty can be made. As far as British Columbia is concerned, he had no doubt the United States would be perfectly willing, if she could see it was of advantage to herself. Let us see what we have to send away in exchange for the produce of the United States. We had coals, lumber, gold silver, lead, lime, limestone, mathle, glate, silver, lead, lime, limestone, marble, slate, horns, hools, oil, &c. But let us confine our attention to two subjects, coal and lumber. The hon members knew as well as he did that Vancouver Island was one vast coal field, then passing beyond Vancouver Island they had mines of anthracite at Queen Charlotte Island of inestimable value to the We ought to use these mines a Colony. We ought to use these mines as capital for the use of the Colony; coal was only exported from one mine at Nanaimo, but when the other mines were opened the amount exported would be something enormous. We had any quantity of the best lime. The waters around the Colony were teeming with fish of the finest and most valuable kind. Those who had embarked in the kind. Those who had embarked in the whale fishing were convinced that it would become one of the staple interests of the Colony, and be productive of large profits. Here we have any number of articles, our natural resources, and all we desire is a large market. How members must not be carried away by sentimentality, or they might perhaps ruin the Colony could supply the whole Pacific Coast, and as our mines were opened more would be taken out and of course more sold. The things we have to send away are precisely the things our neighsend away are precisely the things our neighbors require. There were the Railways from the Pacific and the constantly increasing lines of steamers to China, the East Indies, Panama Alaska, &c.4which must all be supplied with our coal, and it was therefore the interest of the people on the Pacific that the duties be taken off coal, as it was very people they would be without any treaty at the duties be taken off coal, as it was very probable they would be without any treaty at all. It was more to the interest of the United States to receive our coals, than for us to send them, and the results of the importations of coal would be most beneficial to the United States, so that we must not consider that we derive any advantage from the remission of daties by the United States and we cannot therefore be expected to remit daties here as a set off to any alleged loss of revenue on coals by the United States. We shill hold on to coals as our capital, having that which our neighbors have not, and should make the most of it. Then if we take lumber the importation

it. Then if we take lumber the importation of our lumber into the United States would so much that the consumption of articles so much that the consumption of articles required from the United States would increase in proportion as the consumption exceeded our production. That such increase would take place should the duty be creases would take place about the duty of remitted, there can be no doubt as American capital would be sent up here sufficient to open all-the new mines available in the Colony; the new mining law making our mines a good and secure investment for such a least the ways possible if a very large. mines a good and secure investment for such capital. But it was possible if a very large number of men were required at the mines that nearly the whole of the articles consumed would be bought from the United States. On lumber the loss of duty would be small as the quantity exported to the United States is very little, and not likely the overst great at any time, their area of the little was consumed to the construction. be very great at any time, their own mills being good paying concerns, their advantage lying in their supplies being produced olose at home. The Americans would be only too glad to get our Iron. How long will it be before they have their own smelting works, rolling mills and all the other branches of the Iron trade in full blast? Loking at San Iron trade in full blast? L'ofting at San Francisco as it was ten years ago, compared with what she is now, we must admit that her progress has been like that of a comet. What will she be ten years bence? If they admit the ores, coal, &c., of this Colony they will certainly be doing themselves good, as, of course they would be helping us to some extentalso. Hè had strictly predicted the service of the compared to the compared confined himself to our natural productions, and without exception Vancouver Island was the richest place in Her Majesty's dominions as the more the Island was explored, the greater, the riches revealed; this was easily understood if we looked at the very large revenue derived from so small a popu-lation. He would omit from the treaty anylation, He would omit from the treaty anything that was the production of men's hands. He had omitted agricultural productions because if such articles were allowed in duty tree, the whole of our farming population would be ruined. He was quite certain that if this Colony was brought into competition with the United States in breadstuffs, we should have no chance. In fact he felt so strongly that to be the case that he would rather give up the treaty altogether than concede the point. He would say to the Americane 'We should not ruin our farmers and so be dependent on you for supplies if you take the duty off of coal, it is to please ers and so be dependent on you for supplies it you take the duty off of coal, it is to please yoursolves. He simply asserted it as his belief. Had our farmers come here on condition of free trade they would have had no reason to complain, but after encoaraging them to settle under protection and then take that from them would be to do them a given would reason and protection and they would still that from them would be to do them a grievous wrong, particularly as they would still be compelled to pay duty on all they consumed. He did not see that the United States neeled to demand the admission of cereals. Our coals and lumber would be an advantage to themselves, hence there would be no occasion for the United States to demand the admission of these things. Again we could not keep pace in our production with our consumption so that the United States would still have to supply us without with our consumption so that the Onited States would still bave to supply as without any mention in the treaty. It was the admission of our productions, not the admission of theirs, that was the question, and it was mission of our productions, not the admission of theirs, that was the question, and it was not under these circumstances a one sided trenty. Ours were natural productions which they wished to be admitted, and when admitting them they knew what they were, but that we should admit cereals would be declifedly unfair. The Americans would always have surplus supplies raised by muchinery, while we were compelled to raise ours by the work of our hands. To draw all our supplies of grain from our neighbors might give an imperut to the Colony for the time, but at the same time it would be building up rival towns that must ultimately ectipse us; we should be giving away the gills with which nature endowed us, in order to foster the interests of our rivals. The treaty may be made beneficial to both countries, but it was he made beneficial to both countries, but it was he made beneficial to both countries, but it was he made beneficial to both countries. foster the interests of our rivals. The treaty may be made beneficial to both countries, but it may be made so as to roin this Colony. The working of coal and lumber produced no farming land, in ten years time we might have the holes in the earth where the coals once lay, the stumps of the trees that once grew on our timber lands, but the lumberman would then shoulder his ax, the coal miner his spade, and they would leave us, our wealth being exhausted, to solitude, the larmer having left us long before. It was better to legislate for this wolfare and happingss of the people than to fix our minds. piness of the people than to fix our minds on the acquirement of a few mouldy dollars He had no inspiration from the Government; his views were his own.

interfering with any class of industry, whilst the second came into competition with labor. Coal was our basis and it could not interfere his views were bis own.

Hou Carrell knew but very little about treaties, he know mc : about treating and being treated. Although he cherished the highest respect for the hon proposer of the resolution, he, hou Carrall, regretted to say he must differ with him on this occasion. The Governor asked for the advice of the Council, and it would be proper to respond—but he, hon Carrall, was not in a position to speak on the subject. It was true that we had the treaty lately abrogated to refer to—the one about being negotiated, ramor says, is far more liberal. The few objections he was about to express were derived from salient facts. The treaty proposed by the resolution was like the handle of a jug, all on one side. The late Canadian treaty had been obtained at enormous cost. Our exports were so trivial, and we had no imports worth speaking of, that we could not possibly make any impression at Washington. But supposing the United States willing to treat with us, he did not see that the results to us would be what his bon friend had desired to make them appear. There were other sources Hon Carrall knew but very little about of our lumber into the United States would be a great benefit to the American people, as by Reciprocity they would obtain a better and cheaper article than they can produce. He did not anticipate any opposition from lumbermen on the Sound, they had nothing to fear from competition with us, as they have a much larger number and more expensive mills than we had. When we came to oil we have a market for that, but the Americans would be very glad of all our produce as it would all serve to enrich them. These was a grand distinction between our proas it would all serve to enrich them. Insie was a grand distinction between our products for export, and those of our neighbors, ours being nature's gitts and only require the hands of man to raise them, whereas the other were the products of industry and science. There was a great difference bewould not be of any consequence to us. Our ventures in that article of export had not been profitable; and the Australians could send coals to San Francisco cheaper than we can. In attempting a treaty to have onread admitted duty free, we should have to buck against all their own coal producers. Our only hope of success in a treaty with the Currely take our coal and lumber, they will they take our coal and lumber, they will they take our coal and lumber, they will the look for reciprocal advantages, and compel us to take their grain and flour. What had States. They might object that a large coal and the tree we should have to portion of their revenue was derived from coal and that the quantity of lumber being so small that the difference would be quite immaterial; it must be recollected however, that so far from the remission of duty on coals being an injury, it would be an advantage to the Californians, as the increased enterprise it would give rise to, would more than repay any loss to the revenue.

Then the openin of more mines here would increase the amount of mines here would increase the amount of mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would increase the amount of mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would increase the amount of mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would increase the amount of mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would general to the consumption of more mines here would general to the consumption of the small number of agriculturists at the expense of all the rost of the Colony. If the farmers could produce sufficient grain to supply us, they would do it without protection at our hands. If we admitted the necession tion at our hands. If we admitted the noces-saries of life we should make labor cheap; and if we noted in unison as we had done for the last two years, we should soon be independent of the United States, and com-mund the markets all over the world. The Canadian people were not ruined by the ab-rogation of the late treaty; on the contraction it forced them to look for other markets, which they found, and are now righer and which they found, and are now richer and better off than ever. The present question was one of the most important that could be given to them to consider; they could not ruin the Colony, its resources were too great —but they might retard the progress of the Colony by giving bad advice.

Hon Davie thought hon members were only exhausting themselves discussing a treaty upon which they appeared to be talking in the dark. If any treaty was negotiated, they should do it on their own feet. We had they should do it on their own feet. We had nothing to do with the Dominion of Canada; be thought the less we had to do the better. Let each form their own treaty—that which was applicable to Canada, an old country, was quite inapplicable to us. An old country could dispense with protection, but a new one required it. The American people never one required it. The American people never threw off protection, and have prespered with it. If we thought we could do without protection, we only showed our ignorance. The Governor had no intention of ruining the farming interests which, after a severe struggle, had attained their present importance. How Walkem said with regard to the principle enunciated by the hon member for Victoria, it he desired that hon members believed them, they would out both ways, and merria, if he desired that hon members believed them, they would out both ways, and merchants took a view adverse to it. If the demand was greater than the supply was increased; then our profits would be proportionably great and we should not require a treaty with the United States. We must show first that we have a superior class of articles, and this had not been done. If the facts as stated by the hon member be true, it would make no difference in the San Francisco market by the hon member be true, it would make no difference in the San Francisco market because the dealers there would not sell coals a cent less because the duty was taken off. Hon members must not be led away with the glowing picture drawn by the hon member if the coals were so valuable, how was it that $20,000 of American capital could not approach to the coals were so valuable, how was it that $20,000 of American capital could not approach the finest. be obtained to develop one of the finest mines on the Island? The Americana would not advance a dollar unless that were aure of advance a dollar unless they were sure of making a good investment. If it were otherwise this Government would give them of making a good investment. It is were therwise this Government would give them every facility for opening all the coal mines they chose. The resolution savoured of partial legislation. A pound of flour would always sell for the same price in Cariboo, no mattir what amount of protection they put on here. It was impossible to legislate for two portions of the Colony separately. It was strange that the farmers on Vancouver Island, with all the protection, could be undersold by producers 400 miles away. There may be a slight difference between the quality of the lumber across the Sound and that at Burrard Inlet, in favor of the latter; and the men carrying on these mills appeared to be prospering; but it is ridiculous to suppose that a difference of two dollars in the price would have any effect in inducing the American people to take off the lars in the price would have any effect in in-ducing the American people to take off the duty; the price to consumers would be just the same. If the value of our lumber was so great as supposed in this Colony, more would find its way to San Francisco. He was not of Dr Davie's opinion, that we should stand on our own bottoms. He should stand on our own bottoms. He thought if the treaty was of advantage to us we should avail ourselves of the treaty being negotiated for Canada. We were surrounded by the United States, and if we had nothing better to offer than what had been stated by then member for Victoria, depend upon it the United States will refuse us. If we joined with Canada we might reap some hears! The revenue of the United States in connection with us was too small to consider, and he did not believe that they could not do without our coals.

Hen Havelock would vote for the resolu-tion; he thought that tendered by hon mem-ber for Victoria very good advice. Van-couver Island could produce all its own supwithout our coals. per for victoria very good advice. Yanconver Island could produce all its own supplies. He also agreed with the hon member in thinking this Island one of the richest places in the world, and would take this view of the case in framing a treaty. The United States will reap the most advantage. It, would be well to move for a return of the number of agriculturiate on the Island before we framed a Reciprocity Treaty, and we could then form a better judgment as to whether it was proper to admit grain and flour or not. The opinion of the Hon member for Cariboo did not apply; protection was neces sary for our farmers, and he (Hon Havelock) would decline to make any treaty in which the principles, as laid down by the hon member for Victoria. If the farmer above Yale had not been protected by frieight and good tolls they would not have been in benefit. The revenue of the United States in and road tolls they would not have been in existence now.

Hon Robson begged to submit an amendment, olution was like the handle of a jug, all on one side. The late Canadian treaty had been obtained at enormous cost. Our exports were so trivial, and we had no imports worth speaking of, that we could not possibly make any impression at Washington. But supposing the United States willing to treat with us, he did not see that the results to us would be what his hon friend had desired to make them appear. There were other sources whence the United States could draw their supplies of coals, as Bellingham Bay, Mount Diablo and other places. Then the quantity of our lumber consumed being so small, that the Reciprocity Treaty be referred to a Select Committee; it was unadvisable to oc mittee, as he conceived the House was perfectly capable of dealing with the question. The treaty between Canadarand the United States was not adapted to this country; the protection to farmers proposed in the resolution was very proper; when we were able to the capable of the on two mining camps, but once our land was in Cowichan and vicinity alone. It was very important that public opinion should be expressed in order that Her Majesty's Govern-

Hon. Hamley-The United States showed Hon. Hamley—The United States showed no signs of taking our coals; they occupied themselves in taking care of their own interests and we should follow their example. The duties as they stood at present, he thought, might be materially reduced, say, on some things, from one-fourth to ene-half.

Hon. Young thought the hon. members had Hon. Young thought the hon, members had conjured, up-a myth in thinking that there would be any difficulty in adding our treaty to that with Canada and the United States, if the Home Government made provision for one colony she would make prevision for another. The importations for 1867 did not say much for the value of our agriculture on the island; the farmer succeeded better under free trade than he did now; he paid so more taxes than the Indian. In-relation to our coals, he was told by the gentleman in charge of the mine at Nanaimo that the coals from Bellingham Bay were now shutting out the Nanaimo coals from the market at San Francisco.

Hon. Wood could not vote for the resolution because the second clause contained an tion because the second clause contained an exception in favor of agriculture, and the treaty to have any effect must be on equitable terms. The intrinsic value of coal or lumber aross from the amount of labor expended in procering them. It was absurd to suppose that the American would listen to our arguments about coal and lumber when they had ments about coal and lumber when they had the same material at home. If our farmers ments about coal and lumber when they had the same material at home. If our farmers are the only sufferers by free trade let us give them some advantage in another way and not insist upon the industry of the entire Colony suffering to support a single class. No such thing as a Select Committee should be thought of, it would occupy weeks and conclude by shelving the question of the advisability of involving ourselves in a treaty with the United Status was one that required mature consideration. It was true that England was slow to adopt free trade, but there was no reason why we should follow her example; if that were necessary, we might as well return to the days of shoutage with all its cruelities; we had better follow her callibrated policy and adopt free trade. If we wanted to protest and encourage our farmers, we should give them good rouds and easy communication with the nearest market.

Hon. Trutch thought that nothing could be obtained by reforring the question to a Select Committee, and he thought that it would be better to adjourn the debate till an early date; he would therefore propose that the committee rise and report progress.

Committee rose accordingly, and the debate was adjourned till Wednesday next. Hon Carrall asked leave to bring in an Or.. dinance for the establishment of Lean and In-

A GOVERNMENT messure to abolish statute-labour and provide for the repair of roads from a special fund to be raised by a tax upon land lying along the line to be improved, is said to be in course of preparation. Tois is perhaps the best plan that could be devised, under existing circumstances, to insure communication at all seasons between the town and country. The system of repairing the roads by statute-labor has failed. Many deeply interested parties paid little or no attention to the law, and the cost of collecting their computation money, with the overseer's fees, generally absorbed the entire amount raised, leaving nothing for the repair of the roads, while the work actually performed by those who did not choose to compound was frequently of the most inefficient character. We do not believe that the repeal of the Road Act will meet with any opposition on the Island, where good roads are so essential to the well-being of the agriculturist; and while the Council is engaged upon the subject, why should it not extend the provisions of the law over the whole Colony?

THE Eastern difficulty appears to be approaching a peaceful solution. The Great Powers have agreed to hold a conference on the subject, in which Greece -after indulging in a vast amount of gasconade — has consented to join The Sultan, on the other hand, not wishing to appear over-anxions to come to terms, and having a reputation for bravery to maintain, continues to mutter threats against his Grecian neighbor and witholds his consent to the conference. There is no doubt that the Greeks were deeply the aggressors in the quarrel. From first to last they fostered the Cretan rebellion, which would have died out in a few weeks and a countless amount of misery been avoided, had the rebels not relied upon their foreign ally for assistance Now that the last of the insurrectionists have laid down their arms. Turkey naturally seeks to bring her neighbor to task for her unneighborly conduct. Both nations are aware that they will not be allowed to disturb the peace of Europe by their squabbles; and this fact makes them the more anxious to appear valiant. In a quarrel between two cowards, nothing adds so immensely to the pluck of both as a knowledge of the fact that they will be well held. We hope, in the course of a few days, to chronicle the last of this miserable quarrel between two very miserable governments.

B. Friends and acquair tances are respectfully in vited to attend the funeral from his late residence, at o'clock THIS (Wednesday) AFTERNOON.

THE last passage to Portland of the Active appears to have been attended with rough weather. The officers report a terrific gale on the 3rd and 4th inst, and the sea on the bar at the time of crossing was appaling. The following resolutions by the passengers on board speak for themselves:

A meeting of the passengers on board the California, Oregon & Mexico Steamship Active, was held this day, Jan 6th, 1869, with a view of taking steps to express their high admiration of the conduct of Capt F C Scholl during the fearful gales which raged with unabated fury during the 4th and 5th inst.

J. M. Sparrow, Esq. was called to the chair.

J M Sparrow, Esq, was called to the chai by acclamation, and having briefly explained the object of the meeting called upon Do James Dickson to move the preamble and resolutions which had been prepared and resolutions which had been prepared and deemed appropriate:

We the undersigned passengers on board the C O & M S S Co's steamship Active on her trip from Victoria to Portland, Oregon, having encountered an awful gale of wind during the nights of the 3rd and 4th inst, during which the fate of the ship and the lives of all on board were placed in extreme and feeling that our safe articular peril, and feeling that our safe arrival in harbor is due under God, to Capt F C Scholl and to the officers and men of the ship, for the promptitude and earnest solicitude which they evinced in carrying out his commander do now desire to express our sense of grati-tude for the same in such shape and form as will impress upon their minds the obligations under which they have latd us, therefore be

Resolved. That being desirous of giving a practical manifestation of our thankfulness and exalted admiration of the ceaseless care. sold unwearying energy, heroic courage and sound judgment exhibited by Capt F C Scholl, and the officers and men of the Active, we do now tender to them our sincere and grateful acknowledgment, accompanied by our blessings and best wishes for their

by our blessings and best wishes for their future welfare and prosperity in this life and in the world to come life everlasting.

Resolved, That copies of the foregoing preamble and resolutions be sent to the Oregonian. Herald, Alta California, and Britteh Colonist with the respectful request that they will be pleased to publish it in their respective papere.

Seconded by Thomas Cunningham and carried unanimously.

Signed: James Dickson, M.D. G. White, J. Canningham, A. Lipsett, G. Brown, F. Waterman, J. C. Mayer, Ned Ward, J. A. Leslie, U. S. A., T. Mann, J. M. Sparrow, H. Hudson, J. Little, I. Roland, C. K. Wright, W. Smith, W. Elley, Col. S. Dana, U.S. A, H. Roberts, H. Copperthwaite.

Legislative Council.—The business yes-LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL .- The business yesterday was not of a character to enlist pub- dians, stricken down with the pestilence while lic attention-the great feature of the day on their way home. being the passing through committee of the Savings' Bank Bill-the third reading being fixed for Friday next. It was suggested to us that gentlemen would save the valuable time of the House if they would observe the following rules:

- 1.—In asking questions, great care should be taken to frame them properly.
- 2.—If to any particular department, they should be addressed to the head of that department.
- 3 .- If it be for a return or papers of any kind it should be by address to the Gove ernor. These precautions would prevent the em-
- bar.sament of not knowing whose duty it is to answer the question, or whother it is a question to be answered, or a motion to be debated. We would also respectfully suggest, that in fairness to one another, hon members should avoid talking when any member has the floor, as it is nearly impossible for our reporter to give a faithful report land. under present circumstances.

THERE were three slight shocks of car'h. quakes at San Francisco between the 27th and 31st ult.

THE ship Shooting Star sailed from San Francisco for Nanaimo Jan. 2d.

OVERBOARD AT JAMES BAY BRIDGE .- Last vening, shortly after dark, Mr Robert Homray. while crossing James Bay bridge, heard a cry and a splash, and upon proceeding to that portion of the bridge where the break in the planking occurs, discovered a lad camed Ebonezer Richards struggling in the water. Mr Homfray called aloud for help and the ferryboat pulled off to the spot and rescued the little fellow, who meanwhile had laid hold of a pile and was well-nigh exhausted when taken out. But for the fortunate presence of Mr Homfray the lad must have lost his life. We are told that the bridge is left in a very unsafe state and that no lanterns are arranged to indicate with their friendly rays the point of danger. If the bridge cannot be rendered and for pedes-trians, it should be closed against the muntil the work has been completed and accepted by the Government.

TEA MEETING-The tea meeting by the St. Andrew's Church Society will be held in the new church edifice, on Courtenay street this evening. Tea will be served at halfpast six o'clock, and after the creature comforts shall have been disposed of, brief addresses will be delivered by several gentlemen. The building has been appropriately decorated for the occasion. The entrance will be from the rear of the church, which can be most conveniently reached by proceeding along Government street to Broughton street. A lamp will be placed on the corner of Gordon and Broughton streets, opposite the present place of worship.

MUNIFICENT GIFT-Captain D. B. Finch, of the steamer Eliza Anderson, on New Year's Day, presented the Order of Good Templars of Washington Territory with a hall containing every convenience for the use and improvement of the members, ineluding a printing-room, reading-room library, etc. The gift is the most munificent ever made in the cause of Temperance on the Pacific coast. Captain Finch is one of small class of men who go about doing good, and yet never allow their right hand to know what their left hand doeth.

THE funeral of Mr. T. Carter, of Hillside will take place to day, at 1 p.m., from his late residence. The procession will proceed to Masonic Hall, where the remains will be received at 2 o'clock by the members of Vancouver Lodge, No. 421, and conveyed to the cemetery. It is but two weeks since that Mr Carter, then in the possession of the most robust health, took part in the interment of a deceased brother of Victoria Lodge,

THE SMALL Pox continues to increase at San Francisco. Two hundred deaths from the disease were reported to have occurred in January, and not more than half of the cases are made public. At Jacksonville, Oregon, the greatest alarm prevails, some 35 cases having occurred. At Independence, in the same State, a lady who came up in the Continental and occupied a stateroom adjoining that of the patient landed from that steamer at this port, has been attacked.

DEAD Boy-The dead body of an Indian boy was found lying amid some driftwood on the beach beyond Macauley Point by Mr G. Beckworth. The remains were much decomposed, and from appearances it is supposed that the lad bad fallen a victim to small-pox, and that his relations had thrown the body into the water to escape the payment of funeral expenses. The body was interred by the authorities.

A SHAP-CARPENTER at work on Store street yesterday, met with a terrible accident. He was engaged in squaring a piece of timber with a broad-sxe, when he missed his aim and the blade of the axe entered one of his feet, nearly cutting it off. The axe, in one place, went entirely through to the sole of the boot. He received prompt medical attention and it is hoped that amputation will be unnecessary.

DEATH OF GENERAL ROSSEAU -The death of this gallant American officer is announce ed in our delayed despatches. Gen Rosseau acted as American Commissioner in the transfer of the Russian Possessions to the north of us in 1867, and epent several weeks pleasantly in this city. He died at New Orleans of inflammation of the bowels.

Horrible- A settler from Comox has notified the police that on Hornby Island ha saw lying the bodies of ten dead natives in one group, and that in other parts of the same island he frequently met dead bodies. They are the remains of Hydah In-DUBING quarter ending Dec. 31, 217 vessels passed Dungeness Light. They were classed as follows :- Ships, 25; barks, 117; brigs, 10; schooners, 35; sloops, 43; steamers, 47. From these figures an idea of the growing importance of the Puget Sound shipping interests may be obtained.

MOVEMENTS OF STEAMERS-The steamship Continental sails for San Francisco from Portland to-morrow. The Active left Portland at 4 yesterday afternoon for Victoria; and the G. S. Wright will leave the same port for the same destination at 2 to-day.

NAVAL-II.M.S. Chanticleer, 7 guns, Capt Brydges, 49 days from Panama, arrived yesterday afternoon in Esquimalt harbor Heavy weather during part of the passage is reported.

After a disease has been conquered, there is still the weakness that it leaves behind it to be removed. Convalescence is a tedious affair. If the enfeebled and flaccid muscles, affair. If the enfeebled and flaceid muscles, the shattered nerves, the thin and watery blood could speak, they would cry for help. In too many cases such help as is given them is not of the right kind. The fiery stimulants of commerce do harm. They kindle a temporary flame, which is a mockery. Their effect passes, and the last state of him who uses them is worse than the first.
